London Law Consortium

CLE Opportunity March 16-19, 2015

Comparative Corporate Governance Law

Today’s global economy has resulted in a proliferation of multinational corporations. Frequently, the parent corporation is governed by the law of one country and one or more subsidiaries are governed by the laws of other countries. This seminar will make a comparative assessment of the advantages and disadvantages to incorporating in a particular country. It will focus on corporations considering mergers, acquisitions, or joint ventures with corporations outside of their own jurisdiction and on the reasons why a corporation may decide to form a subsidiary under the law of another jurisdiction. For those comparative purposes, the law of Delaware will by used as the United States model.

This course is offered for one unit of academic credit or up to 12 hours of continuing legal education credit.

Location, Lodging and Amenities

CLE workshop sessions will be held in the academic home of the London Law Consortium, located in the Florida State University London Study Centre (Study Centre) at 99 Great Russell Street, London WC1B 3LA. The Study Centre, located one block from the British Museum, consists of adjacent buildings dating from the 17th century, which have been renovated for educational purposes. Please note that the Study Centre has limited accessibility. If you have a disability, you are encouraged to consult with our staff about possible accommodations.

The Study Centre is conveniently located, near the Tottenham Court Road, Holborn, and Russell Square underground stations and many bus lines. There are numerous hotels in the neighborhood. The closest is the Radisson Edwardian Kenilworth Hotel, located at 93 Great Russell Street, and we are happy to suggest other alternatives in all price ranges. The Study Centre is also within easy walking distance of London’s West End theater district and Covent Garden.

— I loved this experience! I have been talking about the program on Facebook and several alums are interested in attending next year! Best CLE that I ever attended!
