Our Speakers

Paul Gowder
Professor of Law

Professor Gowder earned his B.A. from California State University ('87), his J.D. from Harvard Law School ('00), and his Ph.D. in Political Science at Stanford University ('12).

Professor Gowder teaches constitutional law and torts, and he also taught professional responsibility and the policy lab. His research spans a broad territory in constitutional law, legal data science, ethics, normative and conceptual jurisprudence, political philosophy, democratic theory, and game theory.

Gowder recently published his first book, The Rule of Law in the Real World (Cambridge University Press, February 2016). Currently, he is continuing his rule of law research, but also branching out into (1) democratic theory and the relationship between causation and popular sovereignty, and (2) the impact of machine learning and predictive modeling on both the practice and the concept of law.

Alison Guemsey ('08)
Clinical Associate Professor of Law

Professor Guemsey earned her B.A. from the University of Michigan ('01) and her J.D. from the University of Iowa College of Law ('08). She joined the Legal Clinic in 2017 and directs the Clinic’s federal criminal defense practice area.

She previously worked as the Supervising Attorney for the Federal Defenders of Eastern Washington and Idaho, where she provided direct representation to indigent individuals charged with federal crimes at every stage of the criminal process, including bail hearings, preliminary hearings, jury trials, and sentencing.

Professor Guemsey has also represented indigent defendants before the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.
